Summer School
on Labour Migration in the European Union

With the assistance of

The European Law Students' Association
NAPOLI

The objectives of the EULab Summer School are to:

1. Foster a comprehensive understanding of the multilevel legal framework governing labour migration in the European Union, combined with a deeper knowledge of the areas of agriculture and domestic work.
2. Encourage an interdisciplinary approach to labour migration issues through the combination of strictly legal perspectives with the insights of practitioners from non-legal areas.
3. Promote awareness concerning the gaps between, on the one hand, socio-economic rights recognized to migrant workers under international and EU law and, on the other, their actual enforcement in the everyday reality.
4. Nurture debates among participants from different fields in a highly interactive setting of daily lectures and activities.

EULab Summer School is open to 30 postgraduate students in the fields of Law, International Relations and Social Science; early career scholars and practitioners; civil society at large.

Summer School on Labour Migration in the European Union

TEACHING ACTIVITIES AND SPECIAL EVENTS

Participants will be involved in a daily course covering four main topics (modules):

- The European Pillar of Social Rights (Prof. Fulvio Maria Palombino, Academic Coordinator of the EULab Summer School);
- Migrant Workers' Socio-Economic Rights (Dr Giovanni Carlo Bruno);
- Focus: Agriculture (Ms Giulia Ciliberto)
- Focus: Domestic work (Prof. Fulvia Staiano)

Lectures will be delivered by distinguished Italian and international scholars, who will join the fixed teaching staff.

In addition, daily interactive seminars and workshops where participants may work on practical cases and/or meet practitioners, policy makers and stakeholders will contribute to debates and discussions on practical case studies.

Besides teaching activities, EULab Summer School will host two Special Events:

- The Young Scholars Workshop, open to participants to the Summer School as well as to external academics and researchers under 35 years old. In this context, young scholars will be able to discuss crucial aspects of career development and strategies of communications of research outputs;
- The Roundtable on Labour Migration, that aims at fostering the dialogue on current labour migration issues between the participants to the EULab, policy makers at local, regional and national level, and relevant stakeholders in this field. Such exchange of ideas will be open to the general public as well, raising issues of great importance for the civil society at large.

EULab Summer School (7-16 July 2020)
